Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am very discouraged with the proposed settlement. Microsoft has violated the sense of fair play that Americans, as a whole, deeply cherish. For a corporation of there size, the punishment does not fit the violations. It will not discourage them from going that route again. They have shown that they do not value the law accept when it benefits them. It is obvious that they view the US legal code as a gamebook whose reading of is to provide insights into how to skirt the rules of the game of fair competition.
